1. Two minesweepers, [redacted] were seen in Warnemuende Harbor on 7 February 1953. These vessels differed from the minesweepers often seen in Swinemuende in that their superstructures were fewer and smaller. Their after-decks, in particular, were much clearer. No radar installations were seen on the ships.
2. During the stormy weather prevailing at the time, practically no Soviet naval vessels were observed at sea in the area, where in better weather a number of ships are always encountered.
